

18th January, 1982.

Professor Baroness McFarlane of Llandaff,
Department of Nursing,
Stopford Building,
University of Manchester,
Oxford Road,
Manchester M13 9PT.

Dear Jean,

Please accept my apologies for the delay in answering your letter of December 21st - the College was closed over Christmas and it seemed to take the postman a long time getting the mail to its desired place of address.

Thank you very much in principle for taking an interest in the course in Nursing Studies and its development. I have talked to the Head of the Department, Dr. Ivor Burton, and under separate cover he will write to you answering your queries.

In the meantime, enclosed please find first and provisional draft of a syllabus outline. It represents no more than our thinking up-to-date, and as you will appreciate individual courses will be subject to further and constant development. We require overall assessment of the quality of the course and guidelines as to its direction both in range and depth. If you could contribute in any way we would be very grateful for the critique. As I have indicated in my letter to you, we would like you to be the examiner in the core course and I wondered, too, if you might wish to be involved in the examination of the 'extended essay' presented at the end of the fourth year.

Yes, to your question of being sent proposed questions.

I am looking forward to hearing from you again after this letter and the one that Dr. Burton will send you under separate cover.

Yours sincerely,

Marion Ferguson
Director of Nursing Studies.