Dear Madam,

Thank you for sending the proof of the invitation card and programme of the order of procedure on the occasion of Her Royal Highness the Duchess of Kent's visit to the College.

I think the programme seems quite in order, and if you will send me a list of persons to be presented to Her Royal Highness I will submit the list for her approval. I do not quite understand what you mean in your last paragraph about whether it is permissible to present anyone whose name has not appeared on the list. Should there be anyone whose name has been forgotten on the list, you could always mention the fact to me on the day. But perhaps when you write to me again you could tell me exactly what you mean, as I fear I may be misunderstanding you.

Do not bother to write again immediately as we can easily fix the whole thing up shortly before the date.

Yours very truly,
