

June 11th 1921.

Dear Miss Scott,

Next year Bedford College is receiving a number of International Students and I have today been consulted as to whether it would be possible for them to insure against illness for the period during which they are in England. I suggested that they should apply to your office thinking that you were more likely to be able to give them the kind of thing they required than other offices. Their Director, Miss Olmsted (an American) is in England at the time and will probably pay a call to your Department on Monday, so I write to let you know in case you are able to do anything for them.

I am sending a copy of this letter to your private address in case you are not at the office on Monday.

Yours truly,

Secretary.
