

21st February, 1983.

Professor Neville Woolf,
The Bland Sutton Institute of Pathology,
Middlesex Hospital Medical School,
London W1P 6DP.

Dear Professor Woolf,

I am currently teaching Pathology and Therapeutics on the B.Sc./SRN course in Nursing Studies jointly run by Bedford College and the Middlesex Hospital.

I am writing to ask you if it would be possible for me to bring five nursing students to the Department of Pathology on Monday, March 14th, to look at some examples of the pathological conditions that we have been discussing. We would not necessarily need anyone to take us around as, if I could simply be instructed as to the layout of the principle systems, I could conduct the girls around myself.

I hope that this would not be inconvenient and I look forward to hearing from you.

Yours sincerely,

Dr. Elizabeth Dean.
Department of Nursing Studies.