Dear Miss Monkhouse,

I very much regret that my faulty wording the other day led to a little controversy. I have written a letter to Mrs. Edkins pointing out that when I referred to physiology I of course meant physiology as applied to hygiene and industry. I feel quite certain that you will find a satisfactory formula, for all I really wished to imply was that this School was taking a live interest in the International courses and I felt that if this fact were known it might indirectly add to their value.

I think we may all feel very happy as to the future as Mrs. Carter's remarks were most reassuring.

Yours sincerely,

Miss Monkhouse, M.B.E.,
